LIFE'S SHORT I'M NOT!

Looking for love, this 6'-7", hairy, American giant found rock bottom instead.

BRONSTON JONES

“Life’s short—I’m not!” is more than just a pun for this 6’7”, 240lb, hairy giant; it’s his motto, mantra and mission statement, meaning “Tall or small, LIVE LARGER THAN LIFE!” So after leasing his soul to advertising for 5 years, Bronston’s back at the mic doing what he loves most—Saying Something without Selling Anything.

LA Weekly called Bronston “certifiably unique.” Maybe it’s because he tells it like he sees it and is just as comfortable pulling punchlines from his politics as his pants... or politicians pants.

Bronston created and hosts one of LA’s hottest shows, Venice Underground Comedy (LA Weekly Best of LA 2012), which honors the eclectic, subversive and dangerous vibe of Venice by bringing TRUTHful comedians into a historic Speakeasy beachside basement. He’s introduced Bret Ernst, Jim Jefferies, Eddie Ifft, Hannibal Buress, Neal Brennan, Rick Shapiro, Eddie Pepitone, Ian Edwards, Amy Dresner and more of comedy’s best.

Bronston just returned from his first Edinburgh Fringe, where he garnered a 5-star review for his solo hour, and a 4-star co-hosting the LOLympics Live. He’s done standup for Rooftop Comedy and ComedyTimeTV. He’s acted in TruTV’s “All Worked Up,” charity spots for UNF–KTHEGULF, plus commercials for Nike, Found Magazine and other things he’d never buy. He’s guested on numerous radio programs and podcasts and blogs for Huffington Post Comedy.

Behind the camera, Bronston produced or 200+ commercials, promos & music videos. He directed Whoopi Goldberg, Kathy Griffin and Tommy Lee, plus stars of the NFL, Olympics and NASCAR. He directed Uncle Kracker’s Top 20 video “Drift Away” and as well as the award-winning festival darling “MaxiDoodles,” which skewered the commercial biz—then generated more ad work. Irony is awesome! He also production managed HBO specials for David Brenner, Sandra Bernhard and Jerry Seinfeld. Jerry’s opened with a funeral for his retired material: Carlin, King, Leifer, Leno, McMahon, Reiser, Shandling, Wallace and Larry Miller were there! Bronston was too (in the production moho, but there)—inspiring! And perhaps why much of his material deals with death... Or celebrating this short but giant life!

"VENICE UNDERGROUND COMEDY SHOW" AT THE TOWNHOUSE

While the gritty, funky Venice Boardwalk is just yards away and the scruffy aura of counter-culture icons from Jim Morrison to Perry Farrell to a thousand skateboarding, bongo-playing, poetry-reciting characters surrounds the place, downstairs in the Townhouse is surprisingly nice — in the loungey, lush, golden-hued manner of classic Hollywood. No rustic, nautical touches; no laid-back surfy roadhouse feel or sleek, steely modern minimalism. This is pure luxury speakeasy. Into this scene comes 6-foot, 8-inch comedian-producer Bronston Jones, a certifiably unique East Coaster with a love for both Venice Beach and comedy. To Jones, Venice is gritty, grimy and real, and he feels that his Wednesday-night lineup at the "Venice Underground Comedy Show" tends toward comedians who display honesty, pouring out their heart and soul onstage. His partner in the venture is Matt Devlin, a Bostonian with an impressive Zach Galifianakis-length beard. And after the show you can stay for the burlesque. 52 Windward Ave., Venice.
